I would be happy to provide perspective.

Thanks for the word on POTWs.

Thanks Alex, and apologies for the delayed reply. I am not aware of current plans to do this sort of testing, though there is quite a bit of monitoring work related to POTWs and pre-treatment practices that the state of MI is planning to implement. I will reach out to see whether there is anything on this front that I am unaware of.

On a separate issue, I would like to have a brief perspective from an EPA RA at the upcoming PFAS leadership summit. I think you would be ideal for this role. Please let me know if you would be willing to briefly address key challenges you see in the NE.

Thanks, and I hope all is well with you! P. Grevatt

Peter, I am at a New England interstate water pollution control commission meeting and have been asked if EPA is planning to test for PFAS in wastewater discharge at POTWS. I'd like to offer some insight - At least one New England state water director has been contacted by a reporter to get their opinion about this.

Thoughts?
